South West Water established this 16 ha (40 acre) tree garden adjacent to Burrator Reservoir which is now managed by South West Lakes Trust. A network of around two miles (3km) of paths has been carefully planned to meander through the specimen trees and other features. Gradients do vary, but because of the variety of routes it is possible to avoid sloping paths if necessary.

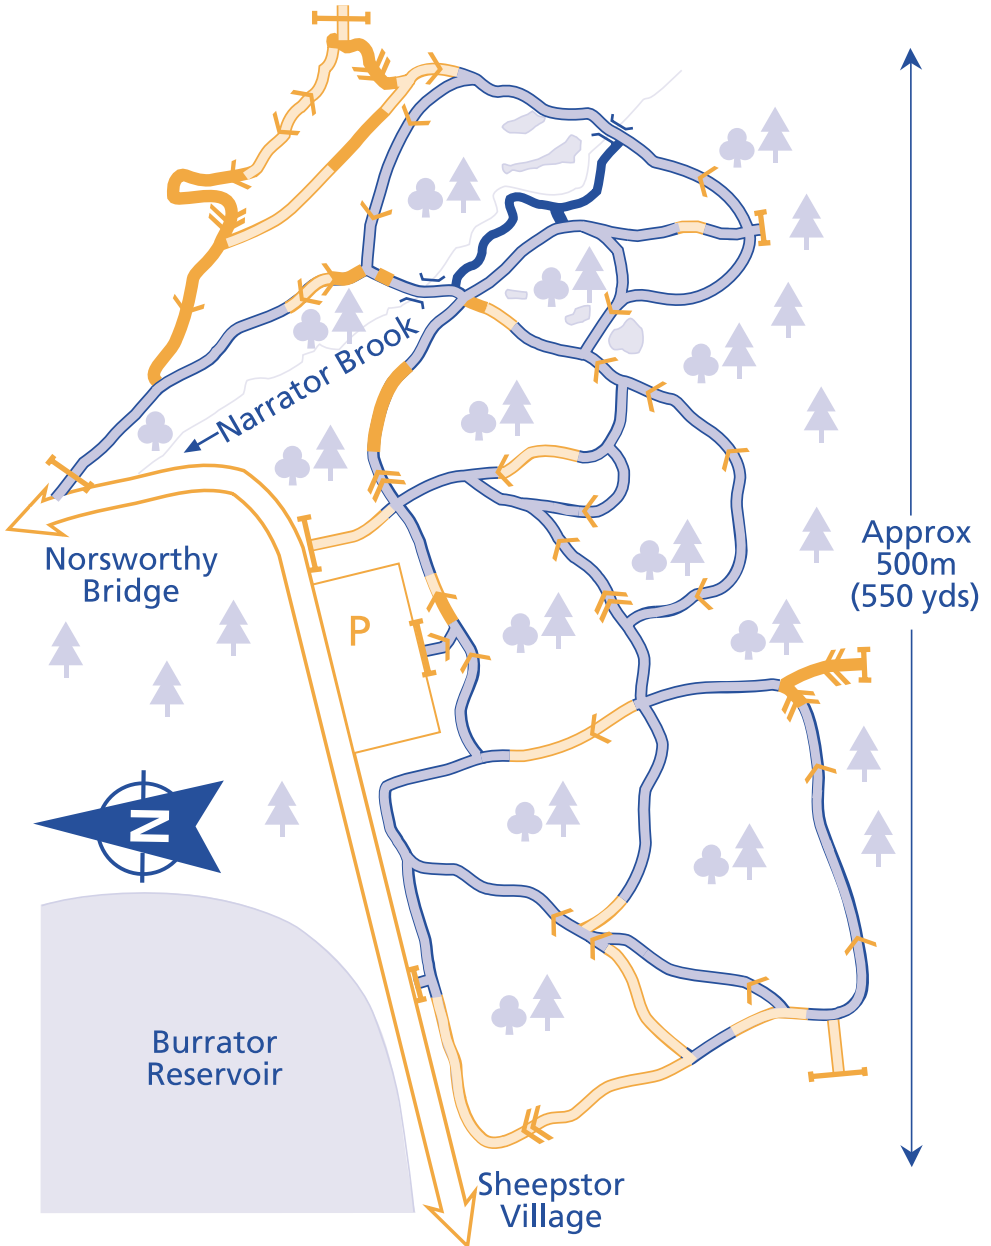

A number of features have been added for interest, including pathside ponds, wide bridges over the river and a riverside boardwalk. The Arboretum is an excellent area for observing wildlife, particularly dragonflies and birds.

For a different experience there is a series of permanent wayfaring and orienteering routes in the Arboretum. Maps showing the orienteering courses are available from Dartmoor National Park Authority's High Moorland Visitor Centre, or South West Lakes Trust (see list of contacts on page 42).

Parking is available on a large sandy area next to the Arboretum. Entry to the walks is via gates accessible for wheelchairs and scooters. Help may be required.
